WHAT IS CANDIDA?

Yeast is a living organism within the body that can grow from exposure to poor nutrition, environmental pollutants, antibiotics, steroids (cortisone) and stress. Candida is the result of an over-infestation of yeast in the body. When Candida is present, the body will crave sugar, bread and alcohol. Several common complaints of individuals who suffer from Candida are: inability to lose weight, daily fatigue, insomnia, anxiety, depression, PMS and hormonal imbalances. It is also common to get every "bug" that comes around, allergies, eczema and acne. Candida can also impact mental faculties with a lack of concentration, foggy thought process or memory loss. If any of these symptoms sound familiar, we are here to help! *
